before. The 3D Printable Design by Fernando Romero is an art masterpiece commissioned in collaboration with Mapart Institute and fully 3D printed using the first 7-layer nickel-alloy filament produced by 3D System. Modern design reflects the spirit of the 20th century through structures and objects made of unconventional materials and shapes. It is about challenging the norm and redefining the way the world is perceived. Fernando Romero - the designer who has designed this magnificent print tells us, "This modern design is not from any short history of 20th century design. It was created for Mapart Gala 2015 - the celebration of modern art. And it is fully 3D printed!" this magnificent print tells us, "This modern design is not from any short history of 20th century design. It was created for Mapart Gala 2015 - the celebration of modern art.

And it is fully 3D printed!" 3D System's nickel-based 3D printer is the first to use a polymer resin such as selective laser sintering's acrylonitrile-butadiene-styrene (ABS) plastic. This resin not only provides great print quality, but also makes it possible for 3D printing in nontraditional materials such as metal, which can also withstand extremely high temperatures.
